Passage

(Track 31) Listen carefully, repeating one section at a time, noting how many times we use the weak form of the word. Read the whole passage without referring to the audio file, always working towards, fluid, connected speech.

“Good morning, ladies and gentlemen,

I’ve lots of exciting things to tell you about our new product. Because it’s so new it’ll have to be referred to as “Product X”. Can you hear me at the back? I can’t speak too loudly in case there’re industrial spies about. I would love to have brought a sample of our new secret product to show you but I couldn’t because the inventor wouldn’t release it, as it’s very secret. So you’ll have to take my word for it.

I’ll try and describe it to you. It’s quite simply the most dramatic and innovative invention since the electric kettle.

I hope I don’t give too much away if I was to say I’m not sure how we could’ve managed if it hadn’t been invented.

Many of you will have seen similar products on the market. That’s not to say they aren’t quite good but I can state, without fear of contradiction, that “Product X” is streets ahead of our competitors.

Because of the superior quality of “Product X” we shall have to launch a highly sophisticated advertising campaign. For a start, we shall probably need a celebrity, possibly someone from “Big Brother”, to front a TV commercial. I can tell you no expense is going to be spared in the world-wide exploitation of our product; and ladies and gentlemen, when we’ve achieved total market domination, you’ll be able to stand tall and say with pride, I was there when “Product X” was launched!”
